Mayor's Message

Hi Fellow Hideout'ers,

February is our kick-off month for the Town Council, Town Staff, and Planning Commission's Annual Retreat on February 10th at the Blackrock Resort (details in article below). The intent of the retreat and workshop are to lay the foundation and set the tone, strategy, and intention for our plans and activities going forward.

Throughout the day, we will be discussing four main themes, including: 1) economic development and financial matters; 2) public safety, including wildfire and transportation; 3) strengthening community identity and building our brand; and 4) the Hideout General Plan. I will also be presenting supporting committees and probable council leads and co-leads.

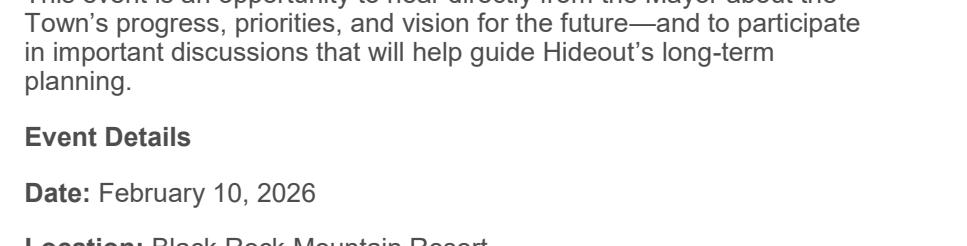

Each of our four themes are associated with challenges and opportunities. For instance, we all should be aware of our opportunity with the Silver Meadows project that was discussed in a special town newsletter in December and represents long-term financial stability for Hideout. Review the newsletter at <https://hideoututah.gov/wp-content/uploads/2026/02/December-2025-Special-Edition.pdf>. We will also be zeroing in on safety concerns, and challenging ourselves and our state agencies like UDOT to work closely with us for highway and street safety.

In addition, I would like to enhance our brand and build strong regional partnerships that can increase our value to our surrounding towns and neighbors while simultaneously enhancing our own property values. At the regional level, I've already met with the mayor of Park City twice as well as a number of other Summit and Wasatch mayors to establish unity and collaboration.

I'll end by saying that although some work still remains to dispel our past reputation, Hideout has recently been noticed in a positive way by our surrounding leaders and communities, which we are so proud of and grateful for. You can always count on me to be Hideout's number one cheerleader. If you want to hear some of that cheerleading in action, listen to my recent feature on KPCW regarding what the next year holds for Hideout.

Thank you,

Mayor Ralph Severini
